‘A kitchen is the heart of a home’ and we can’t deny this statement. It is much more than just a place for cooking anymore. Large or small traditional or modern kitchens are fuel for bodies minds and souls for its residents. The kitchen in modern times has evolved into a space which connects the different aspects of one’s home and can be customized according to one’s needs and style.

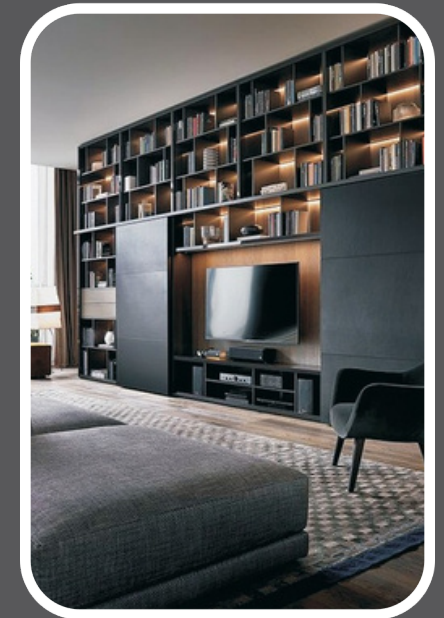

Wardrobe

“ which matches up to your expectation is like juggling around with frogs because there would be some or the other factor that you will have to compromise with, whether it be the division of space inside the wardrobe or its outer appearance, therefore it is always a better option to build your own customised wardrobe especially, when you want your wardrobe to harmonize with the décor of your room”

A modern living room with a large, light-colored modular shelving unit. The unit features a central recessed area for a television. The shelves are filled with books, decorative objects, and framed art. In the foreground, there is a white armchair and a low coffee table. To the right, a white sofa is visible. The room has a clean, minimalist aesthetic with a light wood floor and a white rug.

Commercial interior design involves the development of interior spaces used for business purposes. Commercial buildings have the primary purpose of making money, so commercial interior design is focused on the usability of a structure.

How it Works

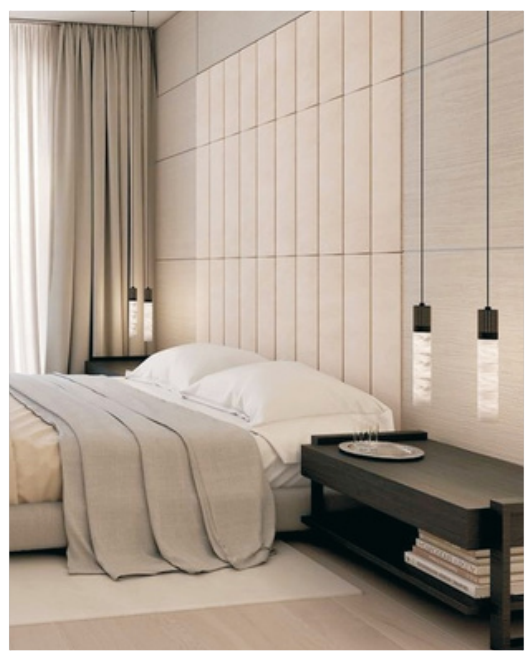

Process Overview

After the initial briefing meeting with Leben Interiors, the design of your space will be carried out in five phases.

Concept Design

The Leben Interiors team will set the design direction, creating mood boards so you can get a feel for the fundamental design elements in your scheme. The team will produce initial colour palettes and present you with ideas for furniture schemes, so you can offer your feedback and give the team the chance to revisit any areas that may need rethinking.

Design Detail Development

Leben Interiors will propose any layout changes, and produce furniture and finished plans to help you visualise the finished space. The team will then confirm all of the furniture, fixtures and equipment (FF&E) needed to transform your space, and also share details of any accessories that will be used. Again, you'll be encouraged to offer feedback at this stage, giving the team the chance to revisit any areas that may need redesigning.

Detail Design

Once the team have your approval, they can move onto the next stage: composing finishes, FF&E and accessories schedules for the project. The team will also create a detailed design package that includes elevations, skirting, curtain details and light switches. Detailed drawings of any custom-made FF&E pieces will also be provided by Leben Interiors at this point. The team will seek your approval and you'll have the chance to revisit any areas that might need alterations.

Project Installation & Handover

Finally, as the project gets closer to completion, the team will oversee on-site installation. Any aspect of the project that might need further attention will be noted and actioned by the team. Once satisfied that the project has been completed to the highest possible standard, the team can discuss with you the best ways to care for and maintain all of the new FF&E in your newly transformed space.
